A Life Underwater

David Doubilet is a well known underwater photographer, who has had his work published in many books and magazines. He was born in New York and started taking photos underwater at a very young age.

I grew up in New York City, a very strange place to go diving. When I was ten, my uncle took me to the premiere of the movie The Silent World. Produced by Jacques Cousteau, the famous underwater photographer, the film was shot in the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean. I was absolutely mesmerised. Sometimes it happens to you. You see something - a moment, a part of life - that changes the course of your life. I was very lucky because it happened when I was only ten.

After the film, knees trembling, I went up to Jacques Cousteau, who stood straight, tall and aloof, talking to people in the theatre. I sneaked between a forest of legs, looked up at him, pulled his jacket and said: "Oh, Captain Cousteau, I want to swim underwater and take pictures. I want to be an underwater photographer." He looked down and said: "Why not?"

My family spent summers at our house on the New Jersey shore. The sea there is dark and murky and changes all the time. Rough or calm, it is always green. That's where I began diving. I had a simple yellow face mask and green flippers from a company called Frankie the Frog Man. The flippers looked like lily pads. My snorkel was made of hard rubber that hurt my mouth, but I could put my head under and breathe when I swam. I learned to be a good free diver and how to spear fish, too, because that's what you did underwater in those days.

At 12, I learned to scuba dive using a double air tank that was heavier than I was. I became a certified diver at 13. There was a group called the New York Skin Diving Academy. I had to study the physics of diving. In 1956 the sport was barely 12 years old, so I was a young pioneer.

I liked to be underwater for one simple reason: I could escape the rest of the world. I could escape school or parents or lunch if I didn't like it. I was constantly being sought for something I was either late for, or forgot to do, or did not want to do in the first place. Being at the bottom of the pool was like being at the bottom of the ocean – no one could reach me.

My parents never really encouraged me, but they never discouraged me either. Everyone in my family did different things. My father, a doctor, liked to fish; my mother played golf; one sister skied; my other sister ice-skated. Everything I did, I did on my own, and everything was possible. I learned early on that if you want to do something, you go and do it.

There were few books about underwater photography back then. I didn't know as much as the authors of those books, but I wasn't far behind. Using a rubber bag, I adapted my first camera, a Kodak Brownie Hawkeye, for underwater pictures. The first results were absolutely terrible, but I wasn't discouraged. I was taking pictures of everything: fish, mussels and clams, and people peering down from the surface of a swimming pool. I was shooting bubbles. At 14, I won my first photography contest. At 15, my picture of a diver pulling up an anchor sold to a South American magazine. My school did not offer photography courses like many schools do today. But even if you're a student, you can't say, "I want to make student pictures." You must say, "I want to make real pictures that will tell a story and please me."

Photography depends on light. How does the light look in the morning? What kind of shadow does a glass of juice cast? Einstein called photographers "light monkeys," because they are fooling with, playing with, and constantly moving the light. A photographer must be as aware of light as a perfume-maker is of smells.

Photography comes from the heart. Strangely enough, it's not something you do, but something you use to explore your interests and to translate them into images.

	3.	Award 1 mark for:
		♦ (I was absolutely) mesmerised.	1 mark
	4.	Award 3 marks for 3 acceptable points or 2 points with one developed. Award 2 marks for 2 acceptable points or 1 developed point. Award 1 mark for 1 acceptable point.

Acceptable points:

- He enjoyed Jacques Cousteau's film (The silent world) / he was mesmerised
- The film changed the course of his life
- His knees are trembling when he approached him (which shows he's nervous about meeting his hero)
- ♦ The way he addresses Jacques Cousteau Oh Captain Cousteau (suggests he is in awe of him / very respectful)
- ♦ He tells Jacques Cousteau that he wants to do what he does (I want to swim underwater and take pictures).

Also accept:

He followed in his footsteps by becoming an underwater photographer.

up to 3 marks

- 5. Award 1 mark for one of the following:
 - His equipment is for children / sounds childish
 - His equipment is very basic / simple
 - Adults wouldn't wear something made by Frankie the Frogman
 - His flippers looked like lily pads
 - He only has a simple yellow face mask and green flippers

Do not accept:

- Because he was 12 when he learned to dive
- the air tank was heavier than he was.

1 mark

- 6. Award 1 mark for recognising that diving was a new sport, eg:
 - He was one of the early people in the field of diving
 - Diving was a very new sport and he was young too.
 - it means he was one of the first people to do it.

Do not accept:

- He was first to go diving
- It means he was a young explorer
- He was first.

8. Award 1 mark for:

He used a rubber / waterproof bag.

Do not accept:

♦ He put the camera in a bag.

1 mark

- Award 2 marks for responses which make the comparison between photography and making perfume explicit, focussing on the importance of the light and smells respectively, eg:
 - I think he was explaining how perfume-makers are good because they know their smells, so to be a good photographer you have to understand the effects and the importance of light

Award 1 mark for a response that refers to either the photographer or the perfume maker, eg:

- It is important for a photographer to understand light and how it can affect the photograph
- He used a simile to show that photography is harder than it looks it is not just taking a picture.

Do not accept:

Light and smell are important ingredients
